DISFAVORS PRELIMINARY MEET BY FEW POWERS

WASHINGTON, July 29—The United States would regard any conference preliminary to President Harding's disarmament conference which did not incalde all of the invited powers, as out of keeping with the president's invitation, it was learned officially today.

The United States looks with disfavor on any preliminary conference it was learned.

NORTHCLIFF'S SHUN STARTS LARGE RUMPUS

British Embassy Cancels Dinner to Noted London Editor—Lord Curzon Exonerated

LONDON, July 29—A rumpus which is marked by steadily increasing bitterness and which now has assumed international ramifications today has grown out of the hostility between Premier Lloyd George and Marquis Curzon, the foreign secretary on one hand and Lord Northcliffe, the great newspaper proprietor on the other.

The latest development and one which promises to increase the hostility was the cancellation of Lord Northcliffe's dinner at the British embassy in Washington.

Deny Implication

The importance of this incident was shown by the fact that the foreign office today took official cognizance of it and issued a formal statement saying that Marquis Curzon had nothing to do with the action of Sir Auckland Geddes the British ambassador in Washington.

Before this denial was issued, friends of Lord Northcliffe had charged the foreign secretary with responsibility for the cancellation. They declared that Marquis Curzon was getting his revenge for the attack against him in Northcliffe's London Times, when the foreign secretary was characterized as "pompous and inefficient" and "unsuitable" delegate to represent Great Britain in the far east conference.

Premier Lloyd George was attacked in the same article and Northcliffe has already felt the effect of the premier's displeasure through the closing of special channels of information which the London Times formerly enjoyed.

War of Reprisal

If it is to be a war of reprisal, the next move is up to Lord Northcliffe, who is now in Washington.

The whole nation is watching the battle with keen interest. This national attention is intensified by the fact that grave political problems have been introduced.

The Lloyd George administration was particularly incensed over an interview given out by Lord Northcliffe in New York in which he quoted King George as saying to Premier Lloyd George:

"When are you going to stop killing my subjects?"

Supporters of the Lloyd George-Curzon faction deny that any such conversation ever took place between the king and the premier and they charge Northcliffe with giving a false impression abroad.

Ostracizes Paper

Persons close to Downing street recall that Premier Lloyd George notified the world that the London Times does not reflect the views of the British government," and now the declaration is made that "America must not accept Northcliffe as the spokesman for Great Britain."

It is declared that Lord Northcliffe wishes to represent Great Britain at the far east conference and that he is so hopeful of achieving this honor that he is going to

ELYRIAN EMPLOYED TO GET VICE EVIDENCE FOR LORAIN OFFICIAL

That Lorain is paying two men $200 a month or $8 a day to secure evidence against law violators through the pursuance of their own desires was brought to light in Lorain at the trial of Louis Naumoff and Marie Russell. The men are E. Miller, a wanderer and H. E. Smith, of Elyria.

The men, as a last resort for the conviction, admitted their guilt. The men's testimony was hardly presentable and given in open open court. No action wil be taken against the men.

Smith says that his wife objects to his means of securing evidence, thereby intimating that he has used the same method on different occasions. He testified as to the specific acts upon which the charges were based.

Avers Rents Must Come Down

Says Landlords Forget That War Has Been Over Nearly Two Years — Predicts Better Conditions

CLEVELAND, July 29—Rents are far too high and should come down as one of the urgent factors needed to get business on a stable foundation, D. C. Willis, chairman of the Cleveland Federal Reserve bank, declared in a lengthy statement issues on business conditions today.

"Rent, one of the main items in living costs, is out of step, and has been along the entire line of march," he said. "In the majority of cases it has failed even to start downward. From some parts of the country come reports that rents are still climbing. It is unreasonable to expect labor to work for lower wages when such a large part of the pay envelope is required for shelter alone.

"It loks as if we are traveling in a hopeless circle but action of certain automobile dealers casts considerable light on the subject. Instead of hanging back and complaining that the other fellow is to blame, they reduced prices and convinced prospective buyers that they meant business. The theory that the man who has nerve enough to cut his prices regardless of what others are doing, will get the trade was proven correct by the increase in orders."

Chairman Wills said indications were that the iron and steel industry has reached its low ebb of business and improvement may be looked for, while the "rubber industry is again showing some life

IRISH PEACE OUTLOOK IS BRIGHT

LONDON, July 29—The outlook for a formal Irish peace parley in London was very bright today.

The Dublin correspodent of the Manchester Guardian reported that the Sinn Fein cabinet had reached a secret decision which is believed to open the way to a peace conference in this city to settle for all time the troublesome Irish issue. It was believed, however, that Eamonn De Valera's reply to Premier Lloyd George's peace offer would not be sent to London for a day or two, possibly not until Monday.

De Valera has been sitting with his cabinet in Dublin every day this week. For a time British officals were perplexed by the unusual length of time taken by the republicans to canvass the English offer but the optimism prevalent in Dublin is now reflected here.

IRONTON MAYOR AND EDITOR IN ROW

Executive Pulls Gun on Publisher and Demands that He Desist Making Attacks — Answers with Seven Column Front Page Reiteration of Charges

IRONTON, July 29.—The semi-climax of a political feud of long standing was enacted on the streets of Ironton, Thursday night when Mayor Thomas L. Collett, walking across the street from his front porch held up at the point of a gun, Editor H. M. Paul of the Morning Irontonian, demanding of him that he cease his newspaper attacks the mayor and the city administration. The Irontonian is a democratic newspaper, the mayor also a democrat, is a stockholder and director of the newspeper. Paul the editor, is a republican and he has rarely missed an issue in criticism of the mayor. His ridicule and sarcasm has been virulent and scathing, and Collett's appeals to the officers of the publishing company to have Paul cease his attacks have been fruitless.

The mayor's action in placing the gun at Paul did not have the desired effect for this morning's issue of the editor's paper carried a seven column head line reading "Mayor Collett essays role of gunman" and then in a story of three columns the editor, reiterates all his previous charges and says he stands by them.

The fight of Paul against the mayor is a personal one as the mayor is on good terms with the officers and directors of the newspaper company.

In his story of the affair in his paper this morning Editor Paul says as he was on his way to his office, he saw Mayor Collett leave his porch and walk across the street to intercept him.

"Say, I want to talk to you," said the mayor as Paul walked towards the curb to meet the executive. he saw Collett level the gun at his breast. "You've got to cease your attacks on me, if you don't something's going to happen," said the mayor.

Paul demanded to know why Collett would carry a gun on the street and the mayor replied that he had a right to do so.

Sentiment naturally is divided here and further trouble is feared.

HARDING URGES SPEED UP IN CONGRESS

Much Work Remains to be Completed by Time of Adjournment on Aug. 25

WASHINGTON, July 29—The republican whip cracked in the house today as a drive was started to complete the legislative work of that body by August 25, in accordance with an agreement reached between President Harding and house leaders at a White House dinner last night.

The republican leadership of the house today sent out telegrams to all absentee members ordering their return to Washington in an effort to wipe the legislative slate clean.

Passage of the tax revision legislation as early as possible in August.

Passage of the Winslow bill authorizing the war finance corporation to extend credits to the railroads.

Passage of the administration measure authorizing the war finance corporations to grant relief to the farmers.

Authoization of aditional appropriations for the shipping board.

Agreement on conference reports on anti-beer legislation.

When this program is carried out there is some slight hope that the house may recess, although leaders are holding out no promises for they declare that there will be many conference reports which will have to be acted upon and they anticipate some difficulties in adjusting legislative differences with the senate. The leaders however, promise that if the program as laid down is carried out by August 25, that there will be some relief for the members of the house even though it may not be a long recess.

WHY WE CALL ATTENTION TO ACTION OF COUNCIL

It may interest our readers to know why we point ut the position which was taken by the councilmen on e gas and electric increase a year ago. It is not beuse we are interested in bringing up the disagreeable because we have anything against any of these men rsonally but it is because we are interested in the fure.

The best evidence of how a man will act or what he ill do under a certain set of circumstances is how did e act under the same circumstances when he was placd under them.

The incoming council will have the gas ordinance fore them for action. It will have the Yellow line anchise before them for action as well as many other opositions of like character which do not now appear.

The best light we have to guide us is the light of exrience and our experience with the present men is such e do not want it repeated.

TRYING TO UNLOAD

Our readers are familiar with the action of the New ork legislature in expelling certain men of that body th whose political opinions the majority disagreed.

The committee which investigated the ground for e expulsion of these men was chairmaned by a man by e name of Lusk. It was known as the "Lusk committee." It brought out many strange and remarkable ings in the course of its investigation of that and other atters.

Now his colleagues are tring to get rid of him as ader of the senate and some of them are trying to throw m out of that body because of "gifts" received by the fe of Senator Lusk from certain ones who furnished e alleged evidence in some of the cases.

The whole transaction is involving the party to such extent that they are endeavoring to get out from unr and want the senator to help them through the "re ning" route.

We think, "Yes," he will not.

MERCY IN THE COURT

There have been, in the city of New York, so many ses for ejection decided against the landlords that ny are withdrawing their suits. Two hundred and ty cases of this kind are on the calendar of the urt of Justice in a single burough, that of the Bronx.

A judge refused to permit the ousting of an old ly seventy-eight years old who was totally blind. She s permitted to stay in the place for some months beuse of the difficulty she would have in moving and in rning new quarters.

It is real refreshing to read the records wherein the urt interprets the law for the protection of the weak.

TWO BASEBALL MEN GET FREE

Two former members of the White Sox baseball team trial for accepting money to throw the game were resed Wednesday. These two are legally guiltless.

One of them wants to get back into the big league. e other is uncertain. The question is how the managers and the public will consider these and others who y be released.

We hope the facts as brought forth in the trial will t justify the belief in the guilt of many. It will be ll for baseball when this trial is finished, the national me purged, and the incidents passed into history.

THE ROTTERDAM CARILLON

The largest "completely chromatic" carillon set of chimes) has been installed in Rotterdam, writes the London Morning Post. The total weight of the forty-nine bells is twenty eight tons; the largest weighing four and one-half tons and the smallest only two hundred and eleven pounds

The American authorities who are discussing the range of the proposed carillon for the Peace Memorial at Washington are disposed to have fifty-four bells. But the idea of the increased number is that the number of bells shall be equal to the number of states in the Union, each of which is to contribute its bell.

The bells in the Rotterdam masterpiece are tuned to equal temperament, each being accurate to a single vibration per second. Such an achievement was far beyond the powers of Hemony, the "Stradivarius of bellmakers," and the other famous Belgian and Dutch bell founders, who worked by rule of thumb, and, though they secured surprising results even in the Seventeenth century, were not acquainted with the scientific theories of bellcasting, and bell-tuning, which have been practically applied—in England only—during the last twenty years. Even at Mechlin and Bruges, where the best and largest of the old carillons are installed, the carilloneur must always carefully consider the keys in which his bels are most effective, particularly with reference to correct intonation, and it is quite impossible to evade all the imperfections of his historic instrument. At Rotterdam, however, the carilloneur will not have to subject himself to any such restrictions and will be able to play in any key with perfect musical effect. The Rotterdam carillon is installed in a chamber 160 feet above the level of the street, which is an ideal height for creating the best impression of the music on the audience below. The inauguration of this magnificent carillon is to be an affair of national importance, which is to be graced by the presence of the Queen of the Netherlands.

X-RAYS DISEASE CURE

It has recently been found by a London physicist, says the London Daily Mail that some of the dangerous X-rays from which a number of specialists have succumbed in the last few months, will pass through an inch of lead, whereas it has so far been thought sufficient to enclose the X-rays tube in a box lined with lead about one-third of an inch thick

It has also been discovered that the effect of the rays to louise or separate into electrified particles in the air in the X rays surgery is one of the most serious causes of X rays disease Ionisation produces ozone and electrically active oxygen and nitrogen—the two gases of which the air is mainly composed which appear to destroy the red corpuscles of the blood and gradually produce anemia with fatal results

The cure is simple—to have a powerful electric fan in all X-ray rooms which will exhaust these gases as fast as they are produced and it is hoped that by the universal use of exhaust fans much of the present danger will be overcome

Do you realize that your Water Works is over half completed and that this Administration has been in charge of the work from the beginning and do you appreciate that a change in management at this time would cost you a lot more money and seriously retard the progress of the work? Would you make a change of this kind in your private business? Of course not—then why think of it in public business? Remember that you pay the bills

FRANCE WANTS WEEK'S DELAY ON BIG MEET

PARIS, July 29—Following a meeting of the French cabinet today, it was reported that France will withdraw her consent to a meeting of the interallied supreme council August 4, and will suggest a further delay until August 11.

President Millierand of France presided at the ministerial council. The ministers discussed at length the British comunication of Thursday dealing with various phases of the Upper Silesian issue.

The British note which was a reply to a French communication insisting upon the immediate dispatch of allied reinforcements to Upper Silesia was brought to Paris by a special diplomatic courier who traveled by airplane. So far as known this is the first time that the airplane has ever been utilized for diplomatic intercourse.

Premier Bonomi, of Italy, has sent word that he would be unable to attend a meeting of the supreme council on August 4, and France probably will utilize this development in her contention for a postponement of the meeting.

COLUMBUS, July 29—Back from a three weeks' vacation trip, Governor Harry L. Davis issued a statement at his office declaring that highway construction in Ohio will continue without interruption. The governor said good roads are more important to the state's economic life than ever before, and that "stopping of public work would seriously aggravate the situation and cause much suffering among the working people."

H. S. Atkinson, democratic floor leader in the house, also came to the defense of Director of Highways Leon C. Herrick in a statement in which he said that Herrick "is a hard working, conscientious official. He has built up a splendid organization that is doing the best work the state has ever had done."

Senator Charles Brand of Urbana, chief critic of the highway department, advised the foes of further road building now to carry their fight to the counties, as highways cannot be constructed without the approval of county commissioners. He added that as a result of the fight material men had "reduced their grab by about 10 per cent."

EARL ROTH OF LORAIN DROWNS

Earl Roth, 18, of Lorain, was drowned in a mystifying manner late yesterday afternoon. Roth, who lives at 2263 Livingston ave., Lorain, had gone in for a dip after work at a private bathing beach. He was with a companion who also went into the water. While his friend was going toward the beach Roth disappeared without a cry, and went down immediately.

Roth is an excellent swimmer, and goes into the water every day. Cramps are thought to have caused death.

A pulmotor was used for an hour without success.

There will be upwards of twenty witnesses for the defense.

Always on the Job

Mayor Jones is overlooking no opportunities to corral a vote, and at all times is awake to his opportunity. This morning he observed a little child wandering down Second street, and promptly took charge of it. He saw which house it came from, so carried the baby back, and hat in hand rang the door bell and handed over his little charge to its mother. Whether he handed her one of his campaign cards or not, is not known.

IS SIMPLY GRAND SAYS OHIO WOMAN

Mrs. Tittle Can Keep Busy All Day Long Without Tiring — Smothering Spells Gone

"Before I took Tanlac I was so weak I could hardly sweep out a room, but now I can keep busy all day long and not feel tired," said Mrs. Cora Tittle, 325 Holibough Ave., Akron, Ohio.

"I had indigestion so bad I suffered agonies after every meal. My food soured and bloated me up so with gas I nearly smothered and would have to fight for my breath. I had almost unbearable pains in the pit of my stomach and felt miserable for hours. I lost my appetite completely, fell off in weight and grew weaker all the time, until finally I got so run down I felt unfit for anything.

"But I improved almost from the very first bottle of Tanlac and three bottles have made me a well and happy woman. My appetite is so good I want to be eating all the time, and everything agrees with me perfectly, for I have gained eighteen pounds in weight. I am so much stronger that my housework is a pleasure to me now, and I simply feel fine. Tanlac is simply grand."

Tanlac is sold in Elyria by J. Adolphus Ebert and leading druggists everywhere.—Advt.

and the general outlook is more cheerful."

"Reports from the textile and garment manufacturers this month are quite optimistic," he stated. "Business in worsted materials is said to be good.

"The combined reports from 14 large banks and trust companies throughout the fourth district show an increase in deposits for June, 1921 over the same month last year of 2.13 per cent. An increase of $1.49 per cent is shown for June, 1921, as compared with May, 1921."

As to operations in the steel industry, Chairman Wills said plants working during the past month have averaged around 24 to 30 per cent of the country's steel capacity a condition that has continued several weeks. As to the rubber industry, he said there was a considerable movement to increase the uses of rubber and to "depend less on the tire end of the business." There has been a remarkable growth, he said, in the use of rubber heels.

HARDING UNCONVINCED ON SOUTHERN PELLAGRA

WASHINGTON, July 29—President Harding is unconvinced that the pelagra situation in the south is not serious, he indicated in a letter to Representative Byrnes of South Carolina today. The president informed Byrnes that he was glad to know through information forwarded by Byrnes that pellagra is not a menace to South Caolina, and expressed the hope that conditions are the same in other states, but added, "unfortunately reports indicate that they are not."

The president assured Byrnes that if official investigation discloses misinformation which is injurious to any community, there will be complete refutation of such erroneous statements.

STATE PRISON BARNS BURNED

LONDON, OHIO, July 29.—Fire last night and yesterday afternoon destroyed the dairy and horse barns, a creamery and four silos at the state prison farm here, causing an estimated loss of $75,000.

The horse barn was struck by lightning during the storm in the afternoon, and early in the evening the dairy barn, in which men were engaged in milking, was seen to be ablaze.

Cows were driven out and aside from the buildings the only loss was in hay, of which approximately 300 tons were burned. Lack of sufficient water hampered the fire fighters.

Burglars Hold Up Family, Get Diamonds

CLEVELAND, July 29—Two masked burglars routed John Davis and his wife from bed in their home on West Boulevard early today and compelled them to surrender more than $3,000 worth of jewelry. The burglars then ripped the telephone from the wall and warned the couple not to make any outcry for ten minutes to enable them to escape. The thugs disappeared in an tutomobile. The burglars first asked for some whiskey Davis said, and when told that he had none, demanded his ready cash which amounted to $85. The jewels, chiefly diamonds, belonged to Mrs. Davis.

GOVERNOR OF ILLINOIS IS NOT ARRESTED

awaiting some reply to the "unconditional surrender" ultimatum sent to him at Chicago two days ago. This ultimatum declared the governor would have to submit to arrest at the Sangamon county courthouse.

The bench warrants issued by Judge E. S. Smith for the governor's arrest are still locked in the safe of Sheriff Mester. His attitude was explained in the cryptic comment "its the governor's move"

Both sides in the drama of legal action that threatens to be the most sensational in Illinois political history were apparently marking time.

Leaving his affairs in the hands of a cabinet of five attorneys, Governor Len Small, under indictment for alleged misappropriation of state interest funds, departed today on a tour of inspection of Illinois roads. The purpose of the tour is to obtain information to be used in the awarding of contracts for road construction. The plans of the governor, it was announced, call for visits to Kane, Will, Cole and other counties of the state. He conferred this fore noon with a delegation from Lake county regarding road building there. The tour contemplated will require several days, makink it evident that the governor will not return to Springfield, where warrants for his arest are held by Sheriff Henry Mester, until some time next week at least.

Claims Immunity

Governor Small persists in his contention that the sheriff has no authority to arrest him.

"The executive functions cannot be interfered with," he said. "The constitution so holds, regardless of the opinion of Judge E. S. Smith of Sangamon county."

But suppose Sheriff Mester attempts to serve the warrants while you are conducting your survey?"

ROBERT PULLEY GETS GOOD GOVERNMENT JOB

OBERLIN—Robert Pulley leaves Saturday for Washington to consult with Senator Willis regarding a government position. Mr. Pulley was a candidate for county commissioner a year ago but lost out. He has a wide following of friends who wish him success in landing a good position. Mr. Pulley was instrumental in securing the purchase of Slater's grove which is now owned by a company of colorpeople.

He has taken an active part in the uplifting of his race in this county.

For two years during the war he was manager of the hotel at the government aviation field at Akron, being the only government hotel operated during the war which closed with a credit balance.

The Public's ... In Utility Development—

Partial reprint from address of Hon. ... President, National Association of Railroad ... Commissioners.

THE PUBLIC SHOULD INVEST IN ...

"I can't believe the public will stand for a ... ary program that will certainly carry us back to ... methods, with less service and at higher rates. We may halt, temporarily, here and there over the ... in the end electric power, as well as other utility ... is going to be carried on in a wholesale manner. ... other method is squarely in the teeth of the very ... of our people and form of government. I have already told you there are 1,450,000 citizens of our country who have invested in the securities of the electric light and power companies of America. This number should be increased to many times the number now owning such securities. Indeed, such a new class of investors, may, in the end, become the only solution of financing the present needs of our electric light and power companies, saying nothing of the future, if such companies are to keep pace in development and expansion as the public in this connection is imperative. Either the public will have to assume and practice a more friendly attitude towards capital belonging to the other fellow, or the public will have to put up the cash and from a class who have heretofore studiously avoided such investments.

"And this brings us face to face with the issue confronting the public utilities of the nation today. They haven't the financial strength for expansion and in many cases this came to be so from the fact that they have been required by regulatory boards to operate on rates that were too low. This issue should be so presented to the public that it may decide for itself the manner in which such financing hereafter shall be done. If private citizens refuse to furnish the money then the public must inform the other fellow that efforts at condemnation or confiscation of his property will not be tolerated."

Think right on the utility question. It is your problem and it needs your help.

selves on the fact that here, in this picture, they can see Doraldina in a dance never before offered the public. This is "The Dance of the White God," an eerie, uncanny, superstitious dance of the South Sea natives.

The story is about—but why spoil the rich pleasure in store for you when you see this picture—and you must see it or you will miss a great treat. Suffice to say that it tingles with life, that it is the very breath of magical romance, that it is a picture not soon to be forgotten—a very masterpiece.

The supporting cast did nobly. It includes Edward Earle, Stuart Holmes, Sidney Bracey, Florence Turner and William H. Bainbridge. And John Ince did one of the best things in his career when he directed this production, which was adapted from the original story by Carey Wilson.

He was unconscious for an hour and was taken to the hospital. At the same time at Colerain, Ellis Wood, of Martins Ferry, suffered a fracture of the collarbone when he collided with the second baseman in dashing for second.

Nerv-Worth Quickly Overcomes These for Adolp. Shields.

"I had had Saint Vitus Dance, and it left me in an awful nervous condition," said Adolphus Shields, a well known Clarksburg, W. Va. resident. "My head ached a great deal, and my stomach was also in bad shape. I had doctored considerably with no results. Two bottles of Nerv-Worth improved my condition wonderfully, and I feel like a new man." It is a strange fact, but nervous and stomach ills are usually found together, and they are likewise the cause of much misery. ... Japan and Australia to ... personal study of conditions ... to possess first hand information on the subject.

... is certain, however, that if the present administration continues in power, Lord Northcliffe will not go to Washington as a delegate, although he may attend as a "journalist historian" and unofficial observer.

A curious circumstance of the fight is that Lloyd George practically owes his post as premier to Northcliffe. Following the downfall of the Asquith government, the Northcliffe papers united in supporting Lloyd George and practically elected him.

"Brands Reply a Lie"

WASHINGTON, July 29.—"It's a lie."——that was the short and explosive comment of Lord Northcliffe today when he read an International News Service despatch from London stating that the British foreign office has issued a statement denying that Lord Curzon has anything to do with the cancellation of the invitation to Lord Northcliffe to be the guest at the British embassy here.

The Northcliffe interview caused a sensation in Great Britain. Its publication was restricted however. The Manchester Guardian said that the interview appeared only in special provincial editions of the Daily Mail and was then suppressed.

The Manchester Guardian alleges that it was "deliberately designed to destroy the credit of the British government in the Irish negotiations and above all to belittle Lloyd George personally."

The Manchester Guardian expressed the hope that Lord Northcliffe would repudiate the interview.

Northcliffe, fresh from his morning bath, and with perspiration streaming down his face strode across the room with his bath robe flapping around his legs, as the reporter was admitted. The publisher beckoned him into an adjoining room and remained standing.

"Be brief, young man," he snapped. "I want to get out of this heat. I can't stand it."

The London dispatch, containing the denial of the British foreign office to Lord Curzon in connection with the cancellation of the embassy dinner was proffered to him.

"Read it," he said. "I can't see."

The despatch was read.

"It's a lie," Northcliffe said sharply and turned to leave the room.

"Can't you say something further about it?" the publisher was asked.

"What more do you want," Northcliffe returned. "I said it was a lie, didn't I."

The telephone rang and one of his secretaries called him. Just before he picked up the receiver he turned and added:

"I happen to know he did it"—referring evidently to Lord Curzon.

Northcliffe turned to the phone and the interview was ended.

Northcliffe and his American representative and H. Wickham Steed, editor of the London Times were entertained at luncheon today by the Overseas Writers, an organization of American newspapermen, who have served in foreign countries.

Mrs. Edward Mc Lean, wife of the publisher of the Washington Post, will entertain Lord Northcliffe at a dinner tonight at her residence. The affair is expected to be as brilliant as the dinner at the British embassy.

King Makes Denial

LONDON, July 29.—King George today took a hand in the Northcliffe-Lloyd George controversy and denied Lord Northcliffe's statement in New York that he (the king) had said to the premier:

"You must stop killing my subjects."

King George's statement repudiating the accuracy of Lord Northcliffe's interview was contained in an authorized statement which premier Lloyd George read in the house of commons.

The statement read by Premier Lloyd George follows:

"Statements have appeared in certain organs of the Irish and English press attributing words of great concern to the king relating to Irish policy.

"They appeared in an interview which Lord Northcliffe seems to have given out in the United States and which was sent to newspapers here.

"It is quite impossible to deal with caluminous statements, but here they are of a very categorical character and they attribute a very serious statement to the sovereign calculated at the present moment to prejudice the chance of an Irish settlement. The statements have been circulated very freely, especially in Ireland."

Good Night Stories

Illustrated by Neva Harrison

SELFISH WILLY CATERPILLAR.

WILLY CATERPILLAR felt very big when he crawled out into the bright sunshine. He walked right over everything in sight except one object which puzzled him and wouldn't move when he commanded it to.

"Get out of my way, you ugly brown thing!" he said in an impolite tone of voice. "I'm a caterpillar, and some day I'll sprout a pair of wings and fly away. What are you who will not move when I tell you?" and he grew so angry he tried to push the brown thing aside.

"Oh, please don't jostle me that way!" said the little brown thing. "I'm having a hard time to start roots."

"Start roots!" exclaimed Willy Caterpillar. "Who are you that talks of roots?"

"Just a tiny brown seed," smiled the brown thing. "A little brown seed waiting for the rain to give me strength to burst my covering so I can grow into a plant."

"Well, if it takes rain to do it," snapped Willy Caterpillar, "I hope it never rains," and, giving the little brown seed a push, he crawled around it, and went on his way.

But the tiny brown seed had its wish. The rain did visit the meadows, and the little brown seed pushed down deep in the soft dirt, and lulled herself to sleep with happy thoughts of the coming day when she would build her castle above the ground.

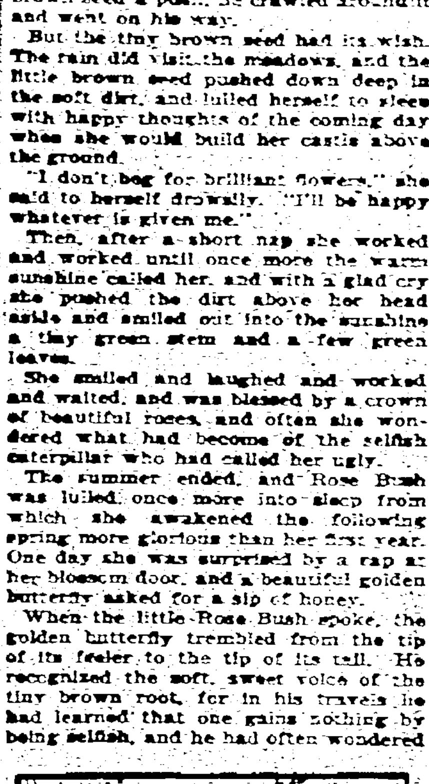

"I don't beg for brilliant flowers," she said to herself drowsily. "I'll be happy whatever is given me."

Then, after a short nap she worked and worked until once more the warm sunshine called her, and with a glad cry she pushed the dirt above her head aside and smiled out into the sunshine a tiny green stem and a few green leaves.

She smiled and laughed and worked and waited, and was blessed by a crown of beautiful roses, and often she wondered what had become of the selfish caterpillar who had called her ugly.

The summer ended, and Rose Bush was lulled once more into sleep from which she awakened the following spring more glorious than her first year. One day she was surprised by a rap at her blossom door, and a beautiful golden butterfly asked for a sip of honey.

When the little Rose Bush spoke, the golden butterfly trembled from the tip of its feeler to the tip of its tail. He recognized the soft, sweet voice of the tiny brown root, for in his travels he had learned that one gains nothing by being selfish, and he had often wondered what had become of the little brown seed he had called ugly.

"Surely, I know you," laughed Rose Bush. "You used to be a caterpillar, and it was you who called me an ugly brown seed. But I've forgiven you that, because when you shoved me out of your way you pushed me upon a soft spot of dirt and the first bit of rain sank me into the softened ground, so I could grow. Help yourself to my honey, little traveler," and she opened her honey well and let him help himself.

Mr. Butterfly felt rather small, but he made Rose Bush his regular stopping place thereafter. And every time he came he brought her a tiny bundle of pollen, until he felt he had in some way made up to her for the unkind remark when he was a caterpillar. Rose Bush accepted his queer way of apologizing, and became the most beautiful rose bush in all the gardens around.

WORDS of WISE MEN

Genius can never despise labor.

Since we cannot get what we like, an excellent plan is to like what we can get.

We shall not find it so difficult to love our enemies if we begin by pitying them.

You can judge responsibilities; but can you also dodge the results of your dodging?

Life never rises any higher than the belief. The man who believes wrong will behave wrong.

While the vision glows the life is young. Only when the vision fades can life be said to have ended.

Nothing can justly be despised that cannot justly be blamed; where there is no choice there can be no blame.

Out of suffering comes the serious mind; out of salvation the grateful heart; out of endurance fortitude; out of deliverance faith.

Patient endurance of misfortune will alone half-conquer it, while impatient murmuring does but increase the burden which we bear.

Patriotism is a blind and irrational impulse unless it is founded on a knowledge of the blessings we are called to secure and the privileges we propose to defend.

To be a good patriot a man must consider his countrymen as God's creatures, and himself as accountable for his acting toward them.

How Mary Got Her New Summer Dress

"I haven't got a single cool thing to wear," sighed Mary. And Mary was a sad girl, indeed. For every girl longs to have plenty of pretty summer dresses. You know that.

But Mary found a way. A day or two before she had been up in the garret looking for an old photo-album for grandma, and she took note that the garret was just crammed full of odds and ends, which the family never used any more. Useful things — but discarded.

So she took an advertisement to The Chronicle-Telegram and offered these things for a quick sale. There was an old jig-saw that father used to use. A great stack of games the children played with when they were small. A child's bed, two rockers, several sets of nicely bound books, a bureau and wash stand, and some clothes.

Mary's want ad brought many responses, and she sold every item she advertised and when she came to count up her cash, she found that there was not only enough for several summer dresses, but a neat little balance for her savings account.

Revelations of a Wife

The Verdict Dr. Pettit Gave.

HOW long does it take that pill pusher to get from Sag Harbor to Southampton?"

Dicky looked at his watch as he asked the question, and abandoned the drapery he had been considering for his studio. With a hasty glance at my own watch I dropped the sheer white ruffled dimity I was fingering, as if it had been something burning hot.

"He's probably there by this time," I said. "We must fly!"

I turned to the waiting clerk:

"Will you please lay aside seventy yards of this? Here is a deposit, and I will return shortly for the bundle."

"Oh, yes, Miss! Thank you, Miss." The very English farewell of the clerk followed me from the shop, one of the ultra smart ones in which the fashionable summer resort abounds, and I saw Dicky grinning at it as we hurried toward the car.

"Yes, your ladyship. No, your ladyship. Isn't there something more we can offer your ladyship?" he mocked when we were once more headed for the hospital. "They certainly do the subservient courtesy act up brown here. How much per cent. do you suppose they tack on to the cost of each article for the 'thank you, Miss' stuff?"

"Enough, I fancy," I returned, "although that white ruffled curtain material was not exorbitant in price, but quite reasonable indeed. Let me see, five yards to each window, and in the front bedroom there are three, two each in those—"

"For the love of Mike, also Pete!" Dicky exploded. "Can the mental arithmetic when I'm around! You ordered seventy yards, you must have had some idea of how much you wanted."

"I have," I returned with dignity. "I was simply checking up my estimate."

"Well, you must be doing it for the fun of the thing!" he retorted. "For I never knew you to make a mistake in your arithmetic before. So cut it out. Do you suppose that sawbones has really arrived? I hope I didn't hurt that child!"

"You May Come in Now."

The exclamation came explosively from his lips, and I glimpsed the very real terror that he had been masking beneath his careless exterior. With the memory of Dr. Pettit's chilling declaration that he could not tell the extent of the injury until he had reached the hospital, I did not dare give any assurance to Dicky, knowing that he would in all probability resent my attempting to give him any. Yet he would be equally resentful of silence, so I answered noncommittally:

"I can't believe that you hurt her, Dicky. You raised her very tenderly."

"It makes a lot of difference what you believe!" he snarled. It was exactly the answer I expected, for I knew that his nerves were tensed, and, in a way, I was glad of it, for it gave me an excuse for not speaking again until we reached the hospital.

Outside Marion's door we came upon Robert Savarin pacing up and down, his hands gripped tightly together behind him. But as soon as he saw Dicky's face he came forward and put his hand on the younger man's shoulder.

"Don't distress yourself so, old chap," he said kindly. "I do not think your action made the slightest difference with Marion's injuries. She was quite herself again after you left. The physician is with her now, making a thorough examination of her back, so we may know the truth at any minute now."

"Thank you, Savarin." Dicky's hand went out gratefully to that of the elder man, and then the door opened and Miss Jones stepped into the hall.

"You may come in now," she said briskly, and we all filed into the room where Dr. Pettit was standing by Marion's bed with his stiffest professional manner upon him.

What Dicky Asked.

The child had tiny drops of perspiration upon her forehead, and her face was pallid, proofs of the pain she had suffered. My eyes went swiftly to Lillian's face, for I knew I should find the truth there. She was again kneeling by Marion's side, with the child's hands in hers, but her eyes, while full of sympathy for her child's pain, had lost their look of terror.

"It's all right," she said, quickly, quietly, and I knew that she could not bear to let us wait Dr. Pettit's slower assurance. "Please tell them, doctor, what you have told me."

"There is no permanent injury, I am sure," Dr. Pettit said. "There are several bad bruises upon the muscles of her back, one especially painful, which will keep her quiet for a few days, possibly longer. She could be moved to the place where you are boarding, if her mother insists upon it, but I think it better for her to stay here for a week."

This was evidently news to Lillian, for she lifted her head quickly and looked at the physician fixedly.

"May I stay with her?" she asked.

"I expect you to," he answered. "She needs no professional care, except when she has to be moved, and then a nurse will be always within call. But you will not need a special nurse, and I am sure you will be very comfortable here together."

"Dr. Pettit!" Dicky struck in abruptly. "Did I increase her injury when I inadvertently raised her this morning?"

"It didn't do her any good," he retorted, and I saw that his dislike for Dicky had triumphed for the instant over his professional instincts. The next moment, however, he was the dignified physician again.

"However, I cannot say conscientiously, that you did her any harm, either," he finished. Then with a stiff bow which included us all he bade us farewell and left the room.

Why Not Let the Rent Money Buy a Home?

"It's cheaper to rent than to buy," is a pet remark often heard. But did you ever talk to a "cheaper to rent than to buy sort of a man ten years later?" Doesn't he, nine times out of ten, say that if he had used a little judgment or taken some good advice ten years ago that he would at least owned a home of his own now?

SUNDAY SCHOOLS OF AMHERST DISTRICT TO PICNIC ON WEDNESDAY

AMHERST—The first general picnic of the Amherst District Sunday School association will be held at Linwood park on Wednesday, Aug 3. This association includes about 11 schools in Amherst, Brownhelm and Henrietta

Plans are being made by those in charge to make this picnic a really big affair. A program of sports is being planned for the boys and girls that will serve to entertain them during the afternoon Each school of the district will look out for means of getting there and ways will be provided for all who have not ways of their own.

At the picnic next week each family will look out for itself in the way of a lunch both for noon and evening, and no doubt some will want to plan for groups of families.

Tags will be provided for the members of each Sunday school on which are to be written the name of the person wearing it, the school and the township from which he comes These will do away with formal introductions and aid the Sunday school people to relieve themselves of that embarassing situation which is the result of waiting to be introduced

The ministers, teachers and officers of the district had a little outing last Wednesday afternoon at the "Y" camp in Brownhelm and made plans for the coming year, including the picnic next Wednesday That meeting was a purely home talent affair and served to get workers of the district better acquainted, increasing their enthusiasm of co-operative work and equipped them with a definite plan and an organization to carry out their purposes

AMHERST COMMUNITY PICNIC IS SCHEDULED TO BE HELD AUG. 10

AMHERST—Final arrangements for the Amherst community picnic given by the Amherst Business Men's Association, which is to be held at Crystal Beach, Wednesday, Aug 10, have been made and will consist of races, contests and ball games, with suitable prizes for the winners of each. There will also be music, dancing, bathing and many other forms of entertainment in operation all day

One of the contests for the day will be a balloon blowing contest for the ladies This contest has been worked out before and is real interesting and all those who miss it will miss one of the big features of the day The ball games will also be a big light on the day's entertainment The teams will be composed of the business men and clerks, some of whom have not played ball for years It will, however be great sport as the old time ball players say that they have not forgotten how to play ball

Tickets are now on sale for the Ford automobile which will be given away The tickets sell for one dolar per book and each book contains ten tickets With each book of tickets the holder is entitled to ten dance tickets or ten merry go round tickets free The Ford is a new one and will be worth the while to take a chance on

Above all other arrangements, the committee from the association has arranged for free transportation for those who do not have any means of getting there Trucks have been secured to take the passengers to the park The exact time that the trucks will leave will be announced later, so that all those wishing such transportation can make arrangements to go before hand It is going to be a big affair.

QUARRYMEN'S PICNIC PLANS COMPLETED FOR CEDAR POINT VISIT

AMHERST—There is some misunderstanding about the train schedule relative to the Quarrymen's picnic, which is to be held at Cedar Point Saturday, August 6 For the benefit of those who are in question, the following train schedule will be in effect Trains will leave Elyria at 7 30 a m and will leave Amherst a half hour later at 8 a m There will also be a train leaving the quarries at 7 30 which will join train that leaves Amherst at 8 o'clock. The train returing to Amherst will leave Sandusky at 7:00 p. m. and will break at the tower at Amherst. All South Amherst people are requested to occupy the last three coaches of the excursion as when the break is made the switch engine will pick up those last three coaches and take them to South Amherst. The other coaches will stop at Amherst and Elyria, where all that desire to get off may do so

In case that the train schedule is not yet understood the committee in charge of the picnic will be glad to answer any questions

In the past ten years the Quarrymen have had successful picnics and there is no reason why the picnic this year should not be an success The Quarrymen's picnic is like an old tradition and should be kept up. The committee has done all that is in its power to do to make this picnic a success and the only thing left to do it to have everybody that can possibly go to be sure and be there There are plenty of amusements at Cedar Point to entertain both old and young.

DR. LEONHARDT SAYS

External treatments seldom cure Piles
Nor do surgical operations.
The cause is inside—bad circulation
The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby
The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead
To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through the stagnant pools Internal treatment is the one safe method. Ointments and cutting won't do it.
J S Leonhardt, M D, a specialist, set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles He succeeded He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in 1000 cases before he was satisfied Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee It is a harmless tablet, easy to take and can always be found at C W Phillips, and druggists everywhere, who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer —Advt.

RIDGEVILLE

RIDGEVILLE— The Ridgeville Grange had a big Juny get together meeting when the patrons from a wide area responded to a very attractive invitation that had been issued

Deputy Frank Van Avsdale, being present, gave a brief but interesting talk

Lawrence Webber entertained the Grangers for half an hour with negro songs and jokes that brought forth much applause

MAKING MONEY

Some men make money in business—some in stocks—some by toilsome saving of their daily wage. But we submit to you the unquestioned fact that more men have reached a comfortable competence through the ownership of property—houses and land which bring in a fixed income—than in any other way.

A good example of this sort of investment is found in a two-family house which we have.

This house is of modern build—four rooms and bath in each suite, and well located.

The call for money in another direction forces the owner to part with it.

The price is reasonable.

The cash required is $1,000. We do not know where $1 000 can be invested to better advantage.

Come in quickly if you are interested.
